

Grading Worksheet - Design Responses

Anchoring of design response in the reading

	100 (+)	A specific idea from the reading is clearly related and particularly compellingly described (though it may be incorrect)
x	100	A specific idea from the reading is clearly related (though it may be incorrect)
	85	A specific idea from the reading is mentioned (though it may be incorrect)
	50	There is a general reference to the reading
	0	There is no reference to the reading

Citation of idea

x	100	There is a correct citation.
	50	There is a citation, but it is incorrect or missing information (author's name, page number)
	0	There is no citation for the reading

Speculative design

	100 (+)	There is a creative and compelling, clearly presented design present.
	100	There is a novel design present, and it is clearly presented.
x	85	There is a design present that is clearly presented, but it may be an already well-known design.
	50	A design is present, but it is not clear how it works.
	0	There is no design present.

Using design to explore the idea

	100 (+)	The design creatively addresses the cited idea in a compelling way
x	100	The design provokes thought about the cited idea
	85	The design has a clearly expressed relationship to the cited idea
	50	It is possible to discern a relationship between the cited idea and the design, although the exact relationship is unclear or somewhat confusing to figure out.
	30	The relationship between the cited idea and the design is very difficult to discern from the response.
	0	There is no relationship between the cited idea and the design; or, there is no cited idea and/or no design

Comments:

This response does a great job of exploring the idea DiSalvo presents. This design is definitely novel, but it is a little hard to understand exactly what the hot tent is. Is it actually covering the earth, or is it something that would be placed in a room for people to understand the phenomenon?
